Dear Mr. Chapman:

I am much interested in your letter which I have just received, and I fully agree with you as to the importance of the introduction of Geography into the curriculum of the University. If it were not that already we have such demands upon our income I should be glad to recommend the establishment of a Chair of Geography in the University, as indeed it must come in the not very distant future. We are, however, at present wrestling with salaries and with smallness of staff so that in the meantime I cannot hope that our finances will be in such a condition as to justify this addition although I know it is.

I am forwarding your letter to Professor Laelver of the Department of Economics so that your views may get as much consideration as we can give them at present.

Yours sincerely,

President.
